RICHARDSON MAKES FAREWELL ADDRESS

"NOTIFIED TO QUIT," HE TELLS STUDENTS THIS MORNING.

ENDORSES HIS SUCCESSOR

Says Lamkin Is "Worthy of the Position"—Tells of Progress in Recent Years.

President Ira Richardson made his farewell address to the student body and faculty, at the annual commencement exercises held at the State Teachers' College this morning. President Richardson's talk was the last event of the morning's program. In his speech he said, "Several days ago I was notified to quit" and referring to a joke made by Mr. Harding previously, "and so I will soon be in the ex-class along with the ex-governors and ex-presidents."

In speaking of his administration at the college he said that he had been actively engaged in school work for the past twenty-five years and had been connected with this institution for the past ten years, most of the time as it's president.

While in Maryville he has seen new courses originated at the college, new activities started, and new plans completed. It was in his administration that many courses were sub-divided and new courses formed. Some of these are, biology, public administra-

Maryville Boy, Now in Tulsa, Saw a Hundred Negroes Burned

Curtis Holt, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alee Holt, was an eye witness of the horrors of the Tulsa riots last week, according to a letter received by his parents. Newspapers have underestimated the casualties among the negroes, he says. His letter is as follows:

"I suspect you have been somewhat anxious in regard to our safety, and I wish to state that for some cause or other I am not wounded and am alive today. That riot was the worst thing you could imagine, let alone see. That box of 30-30 shells came into positive use. I didn't know there was a race riot on, until I came down town the next morning, and was stopped by an officer who asked if I had a gun on me. I said, "No". He then asked if I owned a gun. I told him, "Yes," and he said, "Come with me."

"After reaching the police station, a deputy was detailed to go to my house and see that the gun and ammunition came to headquarters. On my return to the station, I was detailed in a squad and instructed not to waste any ammunition but to take no chances.

"It was about 2 p. m. before the negroes were disarmed and placed under guard. Then the state trops took charge, and the city and county was under martial law two nights and a day. The troops have withdrawn now and civil officers are again in charge.

"It all started over a negro slapping a white elevator girl in the Drexel building Thursday a week ago. He was arrested a few days afterward and put in the city jail. Thre was some talk of lynching, so he was transferred to the county jail Monday.

"About 9:45 p. m. Monday, fifteen armed negroes came to the county jail and demanded the negro be released to them, that there wasn't to be any lynching and that they would shoot the first white——who tried to arrest or disarm them. The sheriff and his negro deputy told them to go home and disarm, as the jail was well guarded to prevent lynching. They left and were gone about ten minutes and returned fifty or sixty strong, seemingly well armed.

"Of course it became known over town at once. They left a second time, and then about two hundred of them in cars and afoot, single file, marched through the streets to the county jail. When they arrived, there was quite a crowd of white men, women and children around the Courthouse. There were a few armed honorary police and deputy sheriffs in the crowd.

"One of the negroes fired into the air, and the rest broke loose shooting into the crowd of women and children, killing one man and wounding a great many others. So the whites broke open stores where they could get guns, and the war was on in full blast in two minutes, and it didn't end until most all of the negro section was razed and hundreds of negroes killed.

"The papers state a very light number of deaths. I saw more negroes than that burned.It was an awful thing, but it seems it had to come, or did at least. I searched and disarmed twenty-five or thirty negroes, and with one exception they all had ammunition on them. It is the general opinion they were preparing for some time to start trouble. I talked to Barney Cleaver, negro deputy myself, and he told me the negroes tried to kill him because he wouldn't join them.

"We don't anticipate any further trouble soon from the negroes here. The outside negroes however, may be successful in causing further trouble"

HARDING SAYS ALL MUST BE EDUCATED

HIGH SCHOOL COURSE SHOULD BE MINIMUM TRAINING.

SHOULD BE NO MAXIMUM

Making School a True Community Center, Will Drive All Baseness and Poverty From the Nation.

Education, the home, church and individual responsibility are the cornerstone upon which the government of the United States is founded, according to W. L. Harding, former governor of Iowa, who delivered the annual address this morning to the graduating class of the State Teachers' College.

Speaking on "Adjusting the School to New Conditions," the governor declared that "a high school education, or its equivalent, is the least that the state should be satisfied with as the heritage that the most unpromising boy or girl is permitted to start life's work with.

"In education," he said, "We should not attempt to fix maximuns, but should insist upon a minimum, below which no school or pupil will be allowed to drop."

The text of his address is as follows:

Governor Harding's Address.

"First, let me say that I was aroused to the greatness of the problems of education by a visit to the schools in operation in my own state, both country and city. I had taught a few terms of school in early nineties, when I was a young man. I did this as has many another, as a stepping stone to another occupation. I thought then, I had no further obligation to public education, save that of paying my taxes. I am convinced now, that as a citizen, one is not doing his full duty unless he is interested and active in promoting the welfare of education in his community and state.

"There is a very prevalent misconception of the office of governor in most of the states of the Union. True, the governor is the chief executive of the state, but the office is more than this. It is, and should be, an educational institution. The governor can accomplish more for his state through an active interest in education, than in any other way.

"I know, from my own experience as a lad, the inspiration there is in meeting those who hold places of trust and responsibility, in both public and private life. I can recall vividly every man or woman out of the ordinary that I met when struggling in my youth for a vision of life, and I am indebted more than I can ever repay for the encouragement I received from these men and women with whom I came in contact.

"We can invent and make progress but we can never outgrow the influence of the personal touch. The fact that have unsolved problems in connection with our schools, is not a sufficient reason for wholesale condemnation of the schools or of the system.

Old Doctrine Outgrown.

"The public school has come nearer to turning out a 100% perfect product, than any other institution of which I have knowledge. The schools have made made good with all who have come within their influence. Those who are illiterate are not the product of the school and should not be charged to the school.

"We have outgrown the old doctrine in this country, that "education is free." The new slogan is—all must be educated. Education is no longer just free, is now necessary. It used to be that the public school was an institution almost sacred and was to be maintained for institution's sake. We now are persuaded that boys and girls are sacred and that the school exists for them. The modern notion is, that schools exist for boys and girls, and not boys and girls for the schools.

"It is the duty of the State to furnish every child an opportunity early in life to find out what the child wants to do, and then prepare it to do that thing well.

The School's Business.

"The business of the school, is to fit boys and girls to live today and tomorrow in a practical and idealistic world. The training should be two fold in purpose.

"First and primarily, so that the individual can easily be self supporting.

PARLIAMENT OF NORTHERN IRELAND CONVENES TODAY

British Viceroy Pays First Visit at Opening of Recently Created Legislative Body.

Belfast, June 7.—With much pomp and in the presence of a brilliant assemblage, the Northern Ireland (Ulster) Parliament was opened today by Lord Fitz Allan, British Viceroy of Ireland. This was the first visit Allan has made to Belfast since his appointment as Viceroy, and he officially represented King George. The Ulster parliament was created under the home rule (partition) act, which established two Irish legislatures. Members of the new parliament took their oaths upon the table that was last used in the old Irish parliament in 1791.

PUEBLO'S DANGER NOW FROM DISEASE

CITIZENS FEAR OUTBREAK OF EPIDEMIC.

RED CROSS IS AT WORK

Harding Issues Appeal for Aid to Flood Sufferers—Maryville People Safe.

Pueblo, June 7.—After four days of terror and suffering, Pueblo is a stir today and is in an optimistic mood. The city and its citizens' nerves has been restored and all fear of further floods has been allayed.

The total number of dead bodies recovered and identified today is thirty-one, but estimate place the death toll to range from two hundred to five hundred.

The day broke fair and warmer, but despite the favorable effect of these weather conditions upon the people, it opens up another menace that may prove more disastrous than the flood itself. Disease, contagion and epidemics are grave dangers. Dead animals are buried under the wreckage in many parts of the city and the stench from the carcasses is already pervading the community.

The water supply is still inadequate. Willis Parker in charge of sanitary work, stated that the property loss in the flood will reach twenty million dollars. He urges that money be sent to the Pueblo people immediately.

President Harding today issued a request to the people of the United States to assist by contributions the American Red Cross in rendering aid to the people in the flooded areas.

Liet. Col. Paul F. Newlon, in charge of the city, has issued an order drafting every able-bodied man in the city for work, and the job of clearing up is progressing rapidly. Scrapers, gasoline engines and all available pumps have been pressed in service. The order which puts every able-bodied man to work provides for pay of 43 cents an hour. Those who refuse to work are subject to arrest and put to work without compensation. But all Pueblo is optimistic and a strong spirit of rapid reconstruction prevails.

Lieut.-Col. Paul P. Newlon, in charge of the troops at Pueblo, is a brother of Fred Newlon of this city.

M. T. Foster, a brother of Mrs. W. O. Garrett of this city, is a water commissioner at Pueblo, but to date, no word has been received from him.

Verne Pickens, who is attending school at Boulder, Colo., has sent word to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. George A. Pickens, that there is no danger in Boulder.

Harley Hughes, son of Mr. and Mrs. D. M. Hughes, and an employee of the Santa Fe railway at La Junta, Colo., has sent word that he is safe at that place.

Mrs. Omer Strong of Pickering will leave tomorrow morning for Spokane, Wash., for a visit with relatives.

Oren Clark of Savannah was a Maryville visitor today.

In addition to the work for her masters degree, Miss Painter spent two semesters studying instrumental and vocal music at the Teachers College and under private teachers in New York City. She has also spent one semester at the University of Southern California.

The following is copied from the Quaker Campus, the Whittier College paper: "Prof. Anna M. Painter, who for the past three years has occupied with distinction the chair in English, is leaving for the Middle West. Her ready wit and her keen appraisal of those things which make for the richest and best in life have been felt by all those whose privilege it has been to study under her. Her support of those elements of college life which represent the true ideals of our Alma Mater has been as whole hearted as it has been unostentatious."

VACATION BIBLE SCHOOL BEGINS WORK TOMORROW

Twenty Children are Enrolled for Five Weeks' Course—Open to All Over 3 Years Old.

The first session of the Daily Vacation Bible School at the Presbyterian church begins at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning. The work of enrollment will begin at that time and will be followed by the day's regular program.

Already more than twenty children have enrolled in the vacation school. So much interest has been manifested since the first announcement of the school, for utilizing part of the idle time of vacation, that plans made for an attendance campaign were not carried through. As far as possible those in charge desire to serve every child that wants to come.

The fee for the five weeks term is one dollar. Scholarships will be available so that no one need stay away. More scholarships will be needed, however.

The younger children will be cared for in the kindergarten and after the primary and the junior-intermediate departments will take care of the older children. Any child over three years old will be welcomed.

"Tools, such as saws and hammers and drills for the craft work are needed, and it will be appreciated if there are folks willing to loan tools for the period of the school," said the Rev. S. P. Allison, who will be the superintendent of the school. "All children who are going to attend should be present ready to march into the church at five minutes to 9."

Frocks For Miss Fourteen

There comes a time in the life of every growing girl when she appears almost fantastic in the frocks which so far have been becoming. To avoid the awkward age, styles should be carefully selected to suit her changing size and personality. It is frequently possible to hand down to younger sister many of the dresses which must be discarded. Should the difference in size be too great to permit this, the dresses may be cut over to advantage for a still smaller sister.

As always, plaited skirts and middy blouses are stand-by at the ages of ten to fourteen. Supplementing these are the attractive slip-over blouse models which may also be worn with plaited skirt. A harmonizing check, plaid, or stripe, which is newer, lends veriety to the costume and is equally as smart as a skirt of which the blouse is made.

Sport coats of jersey cloth or rougher fabric and sweaters of any type are appropriate with this costume. In fact, the sports coat will take the place of the top coat and may be worn with anything. Particularly effective are they with light frocks on cool days in summer at the beach or in the mountains. Like her older sister, the girl at the "inbetween age" looks best in a one-piece frock, the waist-line of which should generally be low and not too well defined. In fact, nowadays there is very little difference in the style of dress between twelve and twenty.

The length of the skirt has much to do with preventing an awkward appearance. This can not be governed by rule, but by the build and individuality of the child. Should the skirt be too long, she is dowdy and looks like a stunted woman, or if too short she is "leggy," and no matter how pretty the frock, it looks outgrown. The remedy for this is to try one length and then another till the most becomming is attained. —in June Good Housekeeping.

RABIES REPORTED TO M. U.

Disease Is Not More Common in Summer, Say Doctors—Pasteur Treatment Reduces Fatalities.

Columbia, June 7.—Five or more cases of rabies in dogs and farm animals have been brought to the attention of the veterinary department of the University of Missouri within the last two or three months, according to A. J. Durant, instructor in the veterinary department of the University. The number of cases reported is somewhat larger than usual for this season of the year. The early appearance of the disease, Professor Durant says, is an indication that a considerable number of cases will develop in the near future unless proper precautions are taken to destroy or control the dogs which show any suspicious signs of the disease.

It is popularly believed that rabies is prevalent only in the summer, but according to investigations made by Dr. M. P. Ravenel of the University of Missouri, the cases of infection among persons average the same the year round. In communities where there are more cases of rabies in the summer time, the increase in number is explained by the fact that more people are exposed since they wear thinner clothing and are out in the open more. Also, dogs are more easily infected when they are sheared. It is said that collies are not so subject to rabies on account of their long hair, which protects them from being bitten by other dogs.

The disease is chiefly spread by dogs, according to Professor Durant, but all other animals are likewise susceptible to it. Rabies usually takes from fourteen to eighteen days to develop after the animal is contaminated. This slow development makes it a redeeming feature for anyone who is bitten by an infected animal because the Pasteur treatment does not take effect for about seven days after it is administered.

Fatalities have been greatly reduced by the Pasteur treatment. Formerly from 30 to 40 per cent of the persons bitten by rabid dogs succumbed to the disease, while at present the death loss is probably not greater than ½ per cent. Anyone can have the Pasteur treatment given in his home town. The cost for the human treatment is now about $25 in addition to the physician's fees. A few years ago it was necessary to go to St. Louis or Chicago to be treated, and the cost was then about $150. Even animals can be treated by the Pasteur treatment at a cost of about $6 apiece, which far larger and valuable animals is not prohibitive. The Pasteur treatment should be administered as soon as possible after a person is bitten. Although infected dogs usually die within three or four days after signs of violence it is best not to wait for the animal to die in order to see if it has rabies. The procedure advised by Dr. M. P. Ravenel of the University in cases where there is a liklihood that the animal has rabies is to kill the dog and send its head to the Public Health Laboratory of the University of Missouri. Heads so sent for an examination must be packed in ice and sent only to the Public Health Labratory of the University of Missouri.

COMET PONS-WINNECKE IS DUE TO HIT US JUNE 27

Arrival May Be Marked With Shower Of Meteors—Will Do No Damage.

London, June 7.—Pons-Winnecke, the short-period comet, which is hurling through space at a speed of many thousand miles an hour towards the earth, will not have the best of the "bump," according to Professor A. Fowler, chief lecturer in astronomy at the Imperial Science College, South Kensington.

"It is generally accepted," said the professor, "that we shall come in contact with its tail, if at all. In this event it is possible Pons- Winnecke may become so disintegrated that other self-respecting comets will disown him."

Cyclonic Traveler.

One can picture some scientist in a few weeks' time picking up a small meteor, the mortal remains of this cyclonic traveler in our space. "Alas, poor Pons, we knew him well!" Will doubtless be the comment of the astronomical world.

Professor Fowler was the first scientist to prove that the tails of comets have carbonic oxide gas instead of the deadly cyanogen gas, as was previously supposed.

"When the tail of Pons comes in contact with this earth," continued Professor Fowler, "vast quantities of carbonic oxide, which is an odorless gas, will be absorbed in the atmosphere of this planet. There is no cause for alarm, since the proportion of carbonic oxide is so small in relation to the immense volume of atmosphere round the earth that the effect will be imperceptible. People do not realize how many million tons the atmosphere we breath weighs. At ground level the weight is fourteen pounds to the square inch. In addition to gas the tail will contain meteoric dust—that is, particles of iron and nickel. This dust is not likely to reach us.

Fascinating Theory

"As to how a comet is formed I cannot tell you, any more than I can tell you, from a scientific point of view, how the earth was formed. Perhaps they come from gases thrown off from the sun, which are gradually cooled. On the other hand, leading authorities on astronomy say that it is clear that comets cannot have originated within the limits of the solar system. They propounded the fascinating theory that comets, such as Pons-Winnecke, come from a distance in space so great that it is impossible to think or speak of it in terms of miles."

Professor Fowler added that Jupiter, to whose family Pons-Winnecke belongs, may cause a disturbance and so alter the path of the comet that it will reach its nearest point to the earth about June 27, the date on which it is expected.

"When the public interest in Halley's comet became acute I worked out the exact date of the arrival," continued Professor Fowler, "but I should be involved in laborous calculations for days on end if I were to ascertain the day on which Pons will drop his visiting card in the shape of a shower of meteorites."

Washington School Leaders Like the County Unit System

School Life, published by the United States Bureau of Education, under date of May 1, 1921, carries the following article clipped from the report of the School Code Commission of the State of Washington:

Advantages of the County Unit Law.

Equalizes burdens and advantages, reduces dissensions, and conduces to economy and efficiency.

1. Equalizes educational opportunity by apportioning the funds of the county school district to each school according to its needs.

2. Equalizes educational opportunity by providing a superintendent for the rural schools who is selected solely on the grounds of education, training and successful experience.

3. Equalizes educational opportunity by providing for efficient supervision of the rural schools.

4. Guarantees to each child in the county school district that which rightfully belongs to him—an equal number of days' schooling with every other child.

5. Equalizes the burden of school support by providing a uniform tax levy for the entire county school district. The big district and the little district, the rich land, the poor land, are all taxed uniformly.

6. Abolishes the present system, because of purely arbitrary boundary lines, a large and prosperous district with few pupils pays a small school tax while small and poor districts are compelled to pay a large tax.

7. Favored districts which, under the present pernicious plan, escape with little or no taxation will be compelled to pay their just share for the support of the schools.

8. Eliminates partisan politics and local residence in selecting the most important school official in the county—the county superintendent of schools.

9. Favors the consolidated, graded, equipped and supervised rural school.

10. Permits the wholesale buying of school supplies and the elimination of expensive small-unit business transactions.

11. Enables every county to establish and maintain a good system of schools.

12. Stops forever the dispute about boundary lines and eliminates petty neighborhood dissensions.

13. Provides for better teachers and a longer tenure. The average school director has no standards by which to judge the applicant for a teaching position.

14. Produces a greater return for every dollar expended.

15. Groups both the burden and advantage of education on a large scale and provides a comprehensive and efficient plan for the whole country.—School Code Commission, State of Washington.

JUNE BEST TIME TO SWAT THE FLY

EACH ONE KILLED NOW SAVES MILLIONS LATER

DESTROY BREEDING PLACE

More Persons Die Each Year From Disease Spread by Flies Than In Recent War.

A campaign to swat flies now can help wonderfully in the reduction of the numbers of this nefarious pest in the late summer months, thereby preventing the spread of disease at a time when the vitality of man is least fit to combat it. One swat now saves millions later and probably many lives, so the campaign to exterminate the fly should be carried to its heights during early June.

The only intelligent way in which to exterminate the fly for all time is to use controlling measures with regard to its reproduction. The sanitary care of places where the fly breeds is the untimate way in which to rid humanity for all time of this destroyer of health. Until that is done, the fly will continue to live and increase each spring and summer in uncountable numbers, spreading disease with each innocent-looking winged carrier.

Should Use Screens.

At this time of year, especial care should be taken to see that the use of screens is universal. A careful screening of windows and doors during the summer months, with supplementary use of sticky fly papers, is a protective measure against house flies known to everyone. But not only the house should be screened. Food of all kinds should be kept in fly-proof containers. This is particularly true of not only the home but in more direct relation to the average health of the community to restaurants, stores, bakeries and other similar places. Carelessness in these shops is too often the case. The danger is not realized. That is the main why fly campaign are never considered with more than transient concern. If it could be forcefully brought to the people that more individuals die each year from disease spread by insects as common and as innocent in appearance as the house fly as were killed in the same length of time in the recent war, perhaps action could be evoked.

But the average person feels that the little house fly is too common an acquaintance to be of danger. They have been in existence as long as one can remember, and everybody has continued to live. Such is the sentiment usually expressed in this regard. Such ignorance of the inroads made by the fly on health, not only of adults but more often of children and babies, due to the gross irresponsibility of their parents, is a reason for educational measure in regord to campaign on the fly.

Common Enemies of the Fly

The fly has few natural enemies, living on unmolested to do its deadly work in the safety of its commonness around the house and the way in which its work is unappreciated. The house centipede destroys flies in considerable numbers. Also, there is a small reddish mite which frequently covers its body and gradually destroys it. In the pupa or larva conditions, it is also subject to the attacks of four-winged wasplike parasites, and is also destroyed by predatory beetles and ants during the same period of its development. These enemies are rare, and their attacks upon the fly bring slight results.

USEFUL HINTS FOR THE BUSY HOUSEWIFE

To Remove Grease

Cover the grease spot thickly with powdered magnesia and let it remain for twenty-four hours or more. If there is much grease repeat with fresh magnesia. This can be relied on to "draw out" the grease and it will not leave a ring of different color.—Miss V. Conner.

In Beating Eggs.

A teaspoonful cold watter added to the white of an egg will cause it to whip more quickly, besides increasing the quantity.—Severine Gorka.

Silver Tarnish

Salt will remove the tarnish on silver caused by eggs when applied dry with soft cloth.—Veronica Cullinan.

Hemming A Linen Tablecloth

Instead of sewing by hand use No. 50 thread and sew on machine. It saves lots of time and looks very well. —Mrs. William Kramer.

Whitening Towels.

To whiten Turkish towels that are on used daily put two tablespoons of turpentine in the boiling suds and boil fifteen or twenty minutes with lid on boiler and your towels will be beautifully white when dry.—Mrs. P. T. Ryan.

Declaring that the present primary school systems were unattractive, Thomas A. Edison expressed the opinion that the substitution of motion pictures for books in the nation's elementary chools would bring about an advancement of ten centuries in civilization in twenty years.

As a result of the low prices paid for potatoes in Michigan, thousands of bushels will be used for fertilizer in that district this year.

Hot storage as opposed to cold storage for many things may be realized soon if the experiments of scientists connected with the University of West Virginia prove satisfactory. Great success has been attained in showing the practicability of hot storage for such articles as clothing, carpets, furs, cereals, dried fruit products and other materials unaffected by dry heat. Hot storage with uniform and constant temperature of 100 degrees Fahrenheit would prove more effective than cold storage in many cases.

BEFORE AND AFTER CHILDBIRTH

Mrs. Williams Tells How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Kept Her in Health

Overpeck, O.—"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound helped me both before and after my baby was born. I suffered with backache, headache, was generally run down and weak. I saw Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound advertised in the newspapers and decided to try it. Now I feel fine, take care of my two boys and do my own work. I recommend your medicine to anyone who is ailing. You may publish my testimonial if you think it will help others."—Mrs. Carrie Williams, Overpeck, Ohio.

For more than forty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been restoring women to health who suffered from irregularities, displacements, backaches, headaches, bearing-down pains, nervousness or "the blues." Today there is hardly a town or hamlet in the United States wherein some woman does not reside who has been made well by it. That is why Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is now recognized as the standard remedy for such ailments.

"Second, so that the individual may know something about, and enjoy, civilization.

"That education which does not enlarge the faculties of the individual to enjoy the good and noble things of life and make for contentment is a failure. The free public school is the keystone in the arch of our representative form of government.

Nation Rests on Teachers.

"What the nation is today, can be largely credited to the work of the American School Teacher in the past It is prima facie evidence that the school must be kept a little in advance of everything else in the country. It must not be allowed to trail. Events are happening with such rapidity today, that the school which was well adopted for the needs of yesterday is a back number today. The school is the training quarters for citizenship and the life work of the future men and women of the country.

"The child of today faces a new and changed world from that which confronted the child of yesterday. The child of today must be trained for the years in which he will live his active life. The fact that the school is a beacon light ought to grip men and women to give it their very best.

"The up-to-date school should be equipped with proper books and other modern devices. Real live, up-to-the-minute problems should be studied in the school. Botany and chemistry, and in fact all of the sciences are real practical, every day subjects, and should be applied to the problems of the community, rather than to try to teach the pupil in the old, dry way of recent times.

The Ideal Education.

"The school teacher and school authorities should realize that there is little or no place left for the common laborer in the economy of modern business. The boys or girls, who are not trained in the practical, may be educated, but are left with folded hands, and the beckoning finger will not be pointed their way.

"I would not eliminate culture from education. I would encourage culture, but would not make it the basis for a system. Culture is a natural sequence in the process of education, based upon the practical. I want the poor educated in practical things, so that they can acquire and enjoy culture. I want the rich educated in practical things, so that if they do acquire culture, they will know how to enjoy it.

"The elimination of the common laborer means that each individual should be trained so that he will know how, and be willing, to clean up his own dirt. No boy or girl is equipped for life's work, who cannot do well the ordinary things of life. It is the business of the public school to educate all to the place where they will realize that honest labor is dignified.

Teacher's Salaries.

"If our schools are to lead, as they should, the teacher must be paid more than a living wage. Teachers should be hired for a twelve month' period, and paid for a twelve months' period, not turned out to grass for three months of the year.

"Statistics show that about one-third of the teachers in the schools of the country are new each year, and about one-third change places each year. The farms and business of this country could not be a success, if conducted in this way. Teaching should be made a profession, and assured of adequate compensation, so that a much larger percentage of those entering it would stay for a much longer period of time.

Approves Consolidation.

Whenever possible or practical throughout the rural districts, we shall, as rapidly as possible, come to the Consolidated School. In the meantime, it is hardly less than criminal to neglect the One Room School. There are literally thousands of One Room Schools left in this country, and will be, from the very facts of the case, for years to come. These schools sould be standardized, for the boys and girls in these schools are enlisted to the very best that is possible in a One Room School. What the boys and girls are thinking about today and the lessons they are being taught in reference to their obligations to their country, are the things the country is going to be doing in the very near future.

"The fate of the republic is in the hands of the school teachers of the country. Believing this as I do, I count it the duty of every citizen to take a profound interest in the school problems of the country. The man or woman who says that he or she is too busy to attend to the affairs of the public school is but saying that he has not time to take an interest in this country's future welfare. The school is a community institution, and is not fulfilling its functions, unless it teaches every boy in the community.

The Rural School.

"The rural school has, perhaps, more problems to meet because of changing conditions, than has the urban school. The matter of food production is vital to the future of our people. Primarily, with the rural school lies the solution of the problem of keeping enough folks of the land to feed the people. The attractiveness of farm and country life should be a theme running through every course of study, for just in proportion as there is a falling off of the maintaining and improving of the soil and its cultivation, just so fast are we on the road to failure as a nation.

"In most parts of the country rural school improvement is intimately connected with better transportation. As the roads of the community are bettered, schools can be consolidated and their effectiveness increased. The rural schools sould be made the community center. The old time lyceum or debating society should be revived. Father, mother and children went to the schoolhouse together in the old days under that institution. Now, the children go alone to the movie and are constantly being impressed with the frivolous things in life.

Should Use Schoolhouse.

"The schoolhouse should be used days and evenings, six days a week and twelve months in the year. We have too much money invested in schools to have the doors locked so much of the time. One way to reduce school taxes, is to increase the return on the investment. The way to increase the return on the investment, is to have the school touch more people in the community. The school should be a magnet, attracting every person in the community to it.

"The greatest difficulty with the school today, is that it is not appreciated and used by the community in which it is located. The school is a mine of wealth, available to the community and largely unused.

"The teacher should, wherever possible, be provided with a home in which to live. The district should provide this home. But boys and girls, a modern schoolhouse, well equipped, well paid, trained teachers, a wide-awake janitor, a faithful truant officer, money in the treasury, and an honest-to-God school board, do not make a school One all important, absolutely essential thing is lacking,—interested parents.

Parents Must Wake Up.

"We need a campaign of education to arouse the parents of America to the fact that the schools are their property, and in their care and keeping, and need their every day attention. If a commercial house had education to sell and repeat orders were in proportion to the first orders as High Schools graduates are to the entries in the grades, the house would go bankrupt. The manager would be pronounced a failure. Don't lay the failure for more high school graduates at the door of the teacher. The salesman today expects the house to popularized his goods by advertising. Education must be popularized. It ought to be the popular thing to be at the schoolhouse.

"Just now, we are most agitated about the question of preparedness for national protection. Peace is constructive. War is destructive. The same training and skill that will build, can in reverse destroy. The last war, so far as we were concerned, was fought with the head and not with the legs. With a little bookkeeping as to the availability of men, every dollar spent for education can be accounted for defense.

Will Solve Our Problems.

"The whole school system must be built on a sound, economic basis. To a large extent this is being done, for most of the money comes from local taxation and is voted directly by the people. The system must also be built on a sound educational basis. There must not be exploitation, nor cheap nor faddy things put into the schools.

"The school system is always confronted with two problems,—one local, and the other national. The local things and considerations predominate. Therefore, the happy solution is to have the local blend into the national so that the product of the school will be equipped for any station in life anywhere throughout the nation. If the school is made the community center, radiating to and touching every member of the community, ultimately all ignorance all baseness, and all poverty can be driven from our nation, and we can have a people educated, prosperous and with highest ideals."

ALBERT W. NEELEY, QUITMAN TAKEN TO HOSPITAL NO. 2

Is Found to be of Unsound Mind—Liquor Permits Granted Two Physicians and a Druggist.

Albert W. Neeley of Quitman was adjudged a person of unsound mind after a hearing before the county court this morning. He was taken to State Hospital No. 2 at St. Joseph by Sheriff Steve Roach. Neeley is about 50 years old.

The court granted permits to Dr. Leslie E. Dean and Dr. H. S. Dowell to prescribe ethyl alcohol or wine as medicine and the Maryville Drug Company permission to sell the liquors on prescription. These are the first permits issued by the county court under the provisions of the state dry law, which requires applications to be filed ten days before the court meets.

"The last drink of liquor was taken in Nodaway county in May, 1919," said Fred Smith, county clerk. "At least, that's what our records show. No report of prescriptions issued has been filed with us since that time."

The court met this morning and again this afternoon. Bills were allowed and other routine business transacted.

CONTRACT WILL BE LET SOON FOR ROAD WORK

County Court Completed Necessary Steps as Required for 1.7 Miles of Road Near Pickering.

A contract will be let soon by the state highway board for the construction of 1.7 miles of road on the state highway between Pickering and Hopkins. The necessary steps have been taken by the county court so that the work can start as soon as possible.

This road was held up on account of it being necessary to ifle condemnation proceedings against H. W. Smith for land for rounding a corner. The court came to an agreement with Mr. Smith and paid him $50 for his land.

The court notified the divisional engineer of the state highway department at his headquarters in St. Joseph today that all steps necessary have been taken and all right of way shown to be required by the plans has been secured, and is now ready for occupation without cost or delay to the state or contractor.

This piece of road will be graded and permanent culverts and bridges will be built. An estimate of the work that will be done is expected to be about $20,000. The money comes from a state fund. About $40,000 yet remains in that fund to be spent on state highways north and south, east and west in this county.

MARYVILLE TAKES THREE MATCHES FROM HOPKINS

Invading Tennis Stars Lose Only in Boys' Doubles—Win Singles and Other Doubles.

Maryville won three out of the four matches of tennis held at Hopkins yesterday afternoon. The boys' doubles team of Maryville, Mapel and Bland, lost to the Hopkins boys 4-6, 5-7. Bland was troubled with a "Charley Horse" in his left leg and was unable to play the fast court game that he usually does.

The Maryville singles entry, Forrest Gillam, triumphed over "Jigger" Bock of Hopkins, 6-2, 0-6, 6-2. In the second set Gillam eased up and tried his hard ball serve and lost. However, in the last set he came back into the old form and romped away.

In girls' doubles Ruth Miller and Ora May Condon won from the Hopkins team, Gene Chaney and Cleo Kime, 6-5, 6-2.

In men's doubles Gillam and the Rev. S. P. Allison defeated Bock and Stewart 4-6, 6-3, 6-3. This was perhaps the fastest and most interesting of the matches and was a continual fight for points. Hopkins took an early lead and won the first set. In the next two sets the Maryville court stars opened up and showed some real tennis to the spectators. They were all over the court at once and made phenomenal drives and returns.

Return matches will be held in Maryville some time in the next two weeks. As all of the matches of yesterday were fast, some snappy playing is predicted when Hopkins comes to Maryville.

MISS MARY WOOLDRIDGE STARS IN CLASS PLAY

College Seniors Present Last of Class Day Exercises Before Large Audience.

Miss Mary Wooldridge, as Pierieete, was the favorite of the audience which attended the plays given by the graduating class of the college last night. She appeared with Miss Faye Townsend as Pierrot and Miss Bernice Rutledge as the Manufacturer in "The Maker of Dreams," a musical fantasy for which Prof. C. D. Kutschinski and Miss Alice Welling furnished the music on violin and piano.

In love with Pierrot and receiving nothing but disappointment in the play, Miss Wooldridge won the admiration of her audience with her interpretation of her part.

In another of the plays, "Where But in America?" Miss Blanche Dow played the part of Hilda, the maid, exceptionally well. This play brought out the fact that in this day and age servants are often much better off than their employers. Other characters were Charles Wells and Miss Minnie James.

As Annie Dalben in "A Merry Merry Cuckoo," Almo Lucas played extremely well and gave a very good imitation of the song of the cuckoo. She was supported by Ferd Masters and Misses LaDonia Murphy, Wave Hulet and Nell Hudson.

The audience practically filled the college auditorium.

Commencement exercises will end tonight with the alumni banquet at the First Baptist church.

"I think that we will have the necessary number of congressional districts this week, but we must all work hard."

"Hike" Over Trails Afoot Through GLACIER NATIONAL PARK

The notion of getting out into the Rocky Mountains appeals to you, of course. Glacier Park contains 1,500 square miles of the wonderful Montana rockies—peaks of magnificent architecture and of many colors too. And they're mountains of romance as well—the Blackfeet Indians having attended to that through the names they have given them and the legends they have woven about them.

You'd enjoy exploring a glacier—coasting and snow-balling on an icefield in midsummer is great fun.

You like to be out in the woods, too. Here are splendid forests of sweet-smelling pine.

You like to be about the water? Here are countless mountain streams all a-sparkle, and a-brim with Dolly Varden trout; also two-hundred-and-fifty mountain-hemmed, mirror-like lakes—and waterfalls that range from rapids to cataracts.

Fresh air! The mountain breezes are glorious.

Travel in Glacier—that's no end of fun. There are auto-stage and launch routes, miles and miles of skyland pony trails and hiking paths.

And when your day of motoring or cruising or pony-backing or tramping is done, you'll find accommodations that rhyme with this Rockymountainland—mammoth mountain inns and "comfy" chalets or, you can "take your hotel with you and camp."

Glacier is the most talked-of place in America by out-of-doors people. When will you be ready to go? Let me know, so I can make your reservations and you'll be sure of space.

The Life Story of Georges Carpentier

INSTALLMENT FIVE.

By James J. Corbett
Former Heavyweight Champion.

(Written Expressly for the International News Service.)

(Copyright, 1921, by the International News Service.)

Cleveland, O., May 31.—Everywhere I go, friends and acquaintances ask for an opinion regarding Georges Carpentier's chances against Dempsay.

"Carpentier in a wonderful boxer, eh, Jim?" they say, "but can he take it. Can he stand up to Dempsey?"

Without having had a real opportunity on yet to watch Carpentier work against some big fellow, the best reply I can make to these inquiries is to refer my friends to Georges' past performances.

To my mind the showings he has made against Frank Klaus, Billy Papke and Joe Jeanette, not to mention Gunboat Smith, furnish pretty fair proof that he can stand the gaff up to a liberal limit. In the days when he fought Klaus, Papke and Jeanette he was more or less a stripling. He had not yet gotten his full growth and strength, yet he took De Vore beatings from both Papke and Klaus and refused to be discouraged.

Klaus gave Carpentier the worst beating of his career and I want to say right here that Klaus was one tough man in his day. Had Carpentier been other than a lion hearted youth, he must have quit cold then and there, but he is with us today and it means something.

The Klaus-Carpentier bout at Dieppe was a scheduled 20 rounder in 1912. At that time Carpentier started to grow very fast and he had to make weight for Klaus. When he entered the ring he was none too strong and he soon discovered that Klaus was indeed a "bearcat" of a fighter and strong as a young bull. In the early rounds Gorges had no trouble hitting the Pittsburgh battler but Klaus shook off his punches and bored in, inflicting severe punishment on Carpentier's midrfff every time he got into close quarters. The fight went on this way for seven rounds and presently Klaus realized the Frenchman beginning to tire. In the eigth he tried to finish his man. Carpentier, scenting the danger, sluded him. But Klaus did not let up. Round after round he rushed at the Frenchman swinging his fists like flails, shaking off punches and boring in. In the eleventh he caught Georges with a right hander on the jaw and almost knocked him out but Carpentier ran away till his head cleared.

With a great show of courage, Carpentier attempted to take the offensive away from Klaus in the fifteenth. He closed Frank's left eye and brought blood from his mouth, but the advantage was only temporary. Klaus by this time was wild as a steer and his anger lent him strength. The fight carried along to the nineteenth. This round found Carpentier suffering anguish from his punished mid-section. He was also weak and half dazed and about the middle of the round Klaus planted a terrific smash to the stomach that doubled poor Georges up like a jack knife. Blood gushed from his mouth and he collapsed on the canvas. Descamps jumped into the ring and Klaus was the victor on a foul before the referee could start a count.

It took Carpentier some time to recover from the beating he received from Klaus but he refused to be discouraged. No sooner was he himself once more, than he accepted a match with Billy Papke. Once again he had to make weight and once again he did so, to his sorrow.

Papke, a great in-fighter, as was Klaus, found Carpentier trying to fight him at his own game and though Georges had picked up some of the fine points of in-fighting, Papke was his master. At long range Carpentier proved himself a bit better than Papke, but the Kewanee lad landed often and whenever he did he inflicted real punishment. This fight wore on to the sixteenth round, at the end of which Descamps tossed a spongue into the ring when he saw that Georges was scarcely able to find his own corner.

(Sixth Installment Tomorrow).

NEVER HEARD COMMANDMENTS.

New York School Children Give "Don't Marry" and "Love Thy Neighbor's Wife" as Bible Precepts.

New York, June 7.—District Attorney Lewis, speaking before the South Congregational Church, Brooklyn, told of a recent test in a Brooklyn public school, made at his request, to ascertain how many of the pupils knew the ten commandments.

Out of 1,373 children questioned 499 did not know the commandments and 351 children had never heard of them. Asked to repeat the commandments some of the pupils gave these answers:

The first commandment is not to shoot craps.

Don't marry.

Do not make love to your neighbor's wife.

There shall be light.

The ten commandments were the ten amendments to the constitution.

Children must keep off the steps of street cars.

Not to swear for anything.

Don't hitch on wagons.

Don't crook anything.

Love thy neighbor's wife.

Don't swindle.

There shall be water.

Mr. Lewis declined to give the number of the school in which the test was made, but he declared it illustrated the need of some sort of moral and religious training for these children.

Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Bellows left yesterday for Chicago to attend the commencement exercises of Northwestern University when their daughter, Miss Mildred, graduates. Miss Bellows will return to Maryville with her parents to spend the summer.

TRAINING CAMP IS A FREE VACATION

GOVERNMENT PAYS ALL COSTS AT CAMP PIKE.

NO SERVICE OBLIGATION

Only 400 Young Men Will Be Accepted—Application Blanks Are Ready Now.

The one month's free vacation offered by the Government is attracting the attention of the young men of Missouri. Congress has made an appropriation to train 400 Missourians at Camp Pike, Arkansas, during the month of August. At the completion of the vacation the students are returned to their homes without making any obligations for further military service. Application blanks for enlistment at Camp Pike can be had by writing the Citizens' Military Training Camps Association of Missouri with parent offices at the Chamber of Commerce, St. Louis, Mo.

The purpose of the establishment of summer camps is to bring together young men of all types, both native and foreign born; to develop closer national and social unity, to teach the privileges, duties and responsibilities of American citizenship. To show the public by actual example that instruction of the kind contemplated will be to the liking of their sons; that it will develop them physically, mentally, and morally; and will teach Americanism in its true sense.

In the past, each citizen attending a training camp did so at his own expense. The cost, while not large, barred many who were desirous of attending. The present law makes the Citizens' Military Training Camps part of a national system of training for the National Defense. Therefore the new law provides also that the Government pay all expenses of conducting the camps, furnishing uniforms and equipment, food and living accomodations, also medical and emergency dental treatment.

Citizens attending camps will be under no obligation other than strict attention to instructions and observance of regulations during the training period.

The greatest response of the announcement of the opening of these camps will naturally be from young men. Clergymen, educators, and others, who realize the benefits these young men will receive may render a patriotic service to their country by encouraging young men to attend the camps.

Applications will be considered of any Missourian between the ages of 16 to 35. While it is known that many who apply for enlistment this summer cannot be accepted, yet an over-subscription of applicants will insure a larger appropriation from Congress for the summer camps of 1922.
